

The Diamond Monologue

I know what you're thinking...

"The Diamond Monologue: Single + Diamonds = Marriage; the story of one woman's journey from the pew to the altar..."

Not exactly!

When initially asked to write eight study lessons that focus on a pure heart and clarity of thought for single women, I thought: "This is great! I'm so excited! I can't wait! Thank you Jesus, for the opportunity!" But when I actually sat down to pen some of the thoughts that were stirring in my heart, I knew, suddenly, that this was going to require much more of me than I was prepared to give. I also knew that while I wrote with you in mind, God would use this opportunity as a tool to do a little work in me.

So...together we're going to take a journey of introspection; one that will require honesty and action. Let's all rejoice! A city set on a hill cannot be hidden. Neither can a woman whose heart has been cleansed by the Master, whose mind has been renewed through His word, and whose will has been broken and fitted to His will.

Sincerely,
Erica Rutland
